

2008 British Films Catalogue - Call for Submissions of Feature Films

The British Council is currently accepting submissions of feature films for inclusion in the 2008 British Films Catalogue. This catalogue is distributed by the British Council at festivals and markets such as Sundance, Clermont Ferrand, Berlin, Cannes and Toronto. It is an invaluable guide for overseas buyers and festival selectors of the latest selection of British features and short films. The catalogue is also available online at www.britfilms.com.

If you have a feature, or features, that have been produced in the past 12-18 months and are due to be released in the year 2008 which you would like to be included in the British Films Catalogue 2008 please submit your film's details to us using the form on the Britfilms.com website - www.britfilms.com/modules/update/catalogue/add/

The deadline for receipt of completed submissions is Friday 2 November 2007. Please note that films that have been included in an earlier version of the catalogue will not be included in the 2008 edition.

Short films will only be included in the print version of the catalogue if they are part of the British Council's festivals submission scheme, other short films may be submitted but will be only included in the online version of the catalogue only.

For more information contact film.department@britishcouncil.org

The British Council is the UK's leading agency for the international promotion of British film. The role of the Film Department is to broaden and build international audiences for new work from Britain and to encourage new film-making talent in Britain.